INDEX.

Sir Robert Peel and the Peel Party in 1856, 3; qualifications for a Biographer, 5; Hargreaves—Yates—Tamworth—Drayton, 7; Peel's first speeches—bullion report—Mr. Horner, 9; duelling—follies of forty years ago, 11; bill of 1819—Manchester massacre, 13; death of Canning—Goderich cabinet—Peel Home Secretary, 15; Catholic Relief Bill—Peel's speech, 17; ascendancy of the Duke over Sir Robert Peel, 19; tariff of 1842—monster meetings, 21; character of Peel, 23; the Peelites, 25; the Peel party in 1854 and 1855, 27; the Derbyites—Lord Stanley, 29; the Nonconformists, 31.

Gosse's Sea-side Holiday, 32; time-killing at the sea-side, 33; sea-blubbers, 35; magnanimity amongst the Medusæ, 37; suicide amongst the brittle-stars, 39; engineering conchifers—a city of Polypes, 41; the yellow Philodine, 43; the ogre of digestion, 45; gourmandism of Polypes, 47; living batteries, 49; machinery of death, 51; beauty of marine worms, 53.

Dr. Alexander's Life of Dr. Wardlaw.—Religious biographies—early life of Wardlaw, 55; moderatism—the revival—the Haldanes, 57; rise of the voluntary controversy, 59; grounds of the voluntary controversy, 61; Dr. Wardlaw as a theologian, 63; Theology, past and present, 65; characteristics, 69.

The German Courts.—The House of Hapsburg and German unity, 73; Charles V. and the Reformation, 75; the Imperial policy is baffled by Prince Maurice, 77; power of the Protestant aristocracy, 79; suppression of Protestantism by Ferdinand, 81; Wallenstein, 83; liberalizing influence of a Protestant Alliance, 85; Vienna and Berlin compared, 87; Frederick William and his military court, 89; Frederick the Great, 91; France and Austria, 93; Frederick and Joseph compared, 95; visit of the Pope to Vienna, 97; Francis II. and his Minister, Thugut, 99; the Austrian aristocracy, 101; the War of Liberation, 103; the reaction since 1848, 105.

State Policy in America.—The slave and the free—America and Russia, 109; American destiny—doctrine of Monroe and Jefferson, 111; acquisition of Louisiana, 113; acquisition of Florida—its effects, 115; North and South Texas, 117; Slavery—the Union, 119; the Nebraska-Kansas Bill, 121; Kansas—slavery versus freedom, 123; Nicaragua—why recognised, 125; President Pierce and Colonel Walker, 127; America and England, 129; return of Mr. Crampton, 131.

Hours with the Mystics.—Eastern mysticism—Alexandrian mysticism, 133; Dionysius the Areopagite—his celestial hierarchy, 135; St. Bernard, Hugo, and Richard of St. Victor, 137; the chronicle of Adolph Arnstein—German mysticism, 139; mysticism at the Reformation—its character, 141; Cornelius Agrippa and Paracelsus—their poetical fancies, 143; Jacob Behmen—the Rosicrucians, 145; the Spanish mystics—St. Theresa, 147; quietism—Madame Guyon and Madame Maintenon, 149; the English Platonic mystics—Swedenborg, 151.

Aubrey, the Antiquary and Gossip.—Aubrey during the 'Commonwealth,' 155; the 'Rota' Club, 157; connexion with Anthony Wood, 159; his works, 167; sketch of Raleigh, 169; sketch of Bacon, 171; sketches of Shakspeare and Ben Jonson, 173; sketch of Hobbes, 175; Butler, Petty, Boyle, 177; unlucky days, 179; dreams and ghosts, 181.

Recent Editions of the Greek Testament.—Merits of Dr. Bloomfield, 185; merits of Mr. Alford, 187; various readings, 189; theory of Recensions, 191; Lachmann's edition, 193; internal evidence of readings, 195; examination of passages, 197; doxology to the Lord's Prayer, 199; disputed passages, 201; origin of the synoptic gospels, 205; original language of Matthew, 207.

The Pacification of Paris.—Cessions of territory, 211; guarantees of Turkish independence, 213; neutralization of the Black Sea, 217; regulation of the Danube, 221; the Principalities, 223; summary of oriental results, 227; power of Russia in the Baltic, 229; Greece and Belgium, 231; the Italian question, 233.

EPILOGUE.

241—288.

LITERATURE.

Anderson's Lake Ngami, 241.
Buckingham and Chandos' England, 244.
Taylor's Adventures with the British Army, 245.
Creasy's History of the Ottoman Turks, Vol. ii., 245.
Masson's Essays, 245.
Ross' Red River Settlement, 246.
Bunsen's Signs of the Times, 247.
Trench's Translations from Calderon, 248.
Ogilvie's Supplement to Dictionary, 249.
Froude's History of England, 249.
Motley's Dutch Republic, 251.
Guizot's Richard Cromwell, 253.
Russell's Memoirs of Moore, 253.
Eastern Hospitals and English Nurses, 254.
Raikes' Journal, 255.
Meadows' China, 256.
Wortabet's Syria and the Syrians, 256.
Jones' Antiquities of St. David's, 256.
Perversion, 257.
Beste's Modern Rome, 259.
Beyminster, 259.
Charles' Alfieri, 259.
The Daisy Chain, 260.
French Literature, 260.

ART.

The Exhibitions, 262.

SCIENCE.

The Lunar Controversy, 265.
Harvey on Trees, 267.
Crania Britannica, 269.
M'Cosh and Dickie's Typical Forms, 270.
Douglas's World of Insects, 271.
The Micrographical Dictionary, 272.
Sibree's Human Anatomy, 272.
Butler on Ancient Philosophy, 273.
Schwegler's History of Philosophy, 274.
Fraser's Essays, 275.
Dugald Stewart's Works, vols. viii. and ix., 276.

THEOLOGY.

Memoirs of Dr. Kitto, 276.
Dr. Young's Mystery, 280.
Newman Hall on Sacrifice, 284.
Baird on Liturgies, 284.
Lamps of the Temple, 286.
Lyon's Millennial Studies, 286.
Fairbain's Prophecy, 287.
Patterson's Commentary on the Hebrews, 288.

Theology—New versus Old.—New—its origin—its ignorance, 291; the New—its unfairness, 293; its superficiality, 297; its unfaithfulness, 301; its dogmatism, 305; the Old—where at fault, 309; two errors, 321; summary, 323.

Mendelssohn and his Music.—Poverty of musical literature, 325; the greatest musical era, 327; culture of the composers—Zelter and Goethe, 329; the genius of the boy composer, 331; Mendelssohn's English reputation, 333; his oratorios—his death, 335; the composer's language—songs without words, 337; the composer and the Christian evangel, 339; relation of the art to Christianity, 341.

Lord Cockburn's Memorials of his Time.—Early life, 345; duxes and boobies, 347; enters the university, 349; Edinburgh society in 1800, 351; Edinburgh characters, 353; Parliament-house worthies, 355; Lord Braxfield, 357; his love for Edinburgh, 359; character of the author, 361; merits as an advocate, 363.

Creation—Cuvier and Blainville.—Life of Blainville, 367; Blainville's progress—his doctrine, 369; the rival theories, 371; Blainville's difficulties and labours, 373; defects of Flourens and Cuvier, 375; theory of successive creations, 377; views of Blainville, 379.

The Cape of Good Hope and British Caffraria.—Value of colonies, 383; Vanderstel, Dutch Governor, 385; arrival of two French regiments, 387; Korn-boers—Vee-boers—wine-growers, 389; Boers—English at Cape Town, 391; price of slaves in 1834—Dr. Philip—Bushmen, 393; Moffat and Livingstone—Hottentots—Fingoes, 395; the Karoos—Government of the Cape, 397; Sir Benjamin D'Urban—Lord Glenelg—Port Natal, 399; Colonel Mackinnon—Sir Harry Smith, 401; the slave and civilized—Lord John Russell, 403; Mr. Cole—Sir G. Cathcart, 405; his measures, 407; military occupation—improved organization, 409; policy of Sir George Cathcart, 411; Governor Sir George Grey, 413; his policy, 415; Germans as frontier colonists, 417; the voluntary principle at the Cape, 419; separation of the eastern and western divisions, 421.

The Ignatian Controversy.—A too confident editor—the Ignatian question revived, 423; stir in the Episcopalian camp, 425; Dr. Ritter, Mr. Gorham, and Bishop Hinds, 427; personal history of Ignatius, 429; letters attributed to the Martyr, 431; discovery of the Medicean recension, 433; editions of Vossius and Cotelerius, 435; the controversy in the seventeenth century, 437; Bishop Fell's attempt to secure the Syriac version, 439; Curzon's visit to the monks of Deipara, 441; Epistle of Ignatius to the Ephesians, 442—449; Cureton—the English Review—Bunsen, 449; Baur detects Bunsen's weak point, 451; the Epitomists, 453; arguments from the Syriac recension—old weapons in new hands, 457; Hippolytus knew the forgery as such, 459; conclusion, 461.

The Manchester Exhibition.—The Oldham Exhibition of 1854—Origin of the Manchester Exhibition, 465; the building, 467; conditions most favourable to art—Italy, Germany, Flanders, France, 469—473; history of art in England, 474—490; educating influence of art, 491, 492.

Piedmont and Italy.—Physical characteristics of the Subalpine Kingdom, 508, 509; panorama of the Alps, 511; the House of Savoy, 513; Piedmont escapes the general degradation, 515; in the hands of revolutionary France, 517; War of Liberation, 519; Charles Albert, 521; Victor Emmanuel and his Parliament, 523; the franchise—the ballot, 525; the liberal party in Piedmont, 527; Lorenzo Valerio, 529; Piedmont under the priesthood, 531; progress of ecclesiastical reform, 533; what can Piedmont accomplish? 535—538.

EPILOGUE.

539—580.

LITERATURE.

Chapman's Gustavus Adolphus, 540.
Dobell's England in Time of War, 541.
Southey's Letters, 543.
Erlesmere, 544.
Bacon's Essays by Whately, 545.
Napier's Memoirs of Montrose, 546.
Ferguson's America, 546, 547.
Memoirs of Perthes, 547.
Poems by Adolf Hain, 548.
On Foot through the Tyrol, 548.
Footsteps in East Africa, 548—550.
Ferrier's Caravan Journies, 551—554.
Gill's Gems from the Coral Islands, 554.
Mansfield's Paraguay, 557.
Edmond's Universal Language, 558.
French Literature, 559, 560.

ART.

Life of Gainsborough, 560.

SCIENCE.

British Association, 565.
Brewster on the Stereoscope, 567.
Nomos, 569.
Bouvier on Astronomy, 571.
Grindon on Life, 571.
Lardner's Handbook, 573.
Gumpach on the Moon's Rotation, 573.
Smith on Indian Drainage, 573.
Parkinson on Mechanics, 573.
Jennings on Social Delusions, 573.

THEOLOGY.

Macnaught on Free Discussion, 575.
Whately on the Interpretation of Scripture, 577.
Barry on the Old Testament, 578.
Jones on the Proper Names in Scripture, 579.
Conybeare and Howson's St. Paul, 579.
Arthur's Tongue of Fire, 580.
Sunday School Expositor, 580.

Savill & Edwards, Printers, Chandos Street, Covent Garden.